

Subject: Water usage

I believe that the greatest users of water in this state are agricultural and some industrial businesses. As such there should be a scaling of price based on what they use. If most homes use 260 litres a year, why would you charge more, if this is the standard? An incentive can be given to those using less and a higher charge should be given to those using more than the standard. Do not once more, as so many government agencies do, penalise the standard user.

Sue Toby