Western Power Invites Submissions on its Proposed 330kV South West Transmission Reinforcement

Western Power has invited submissions on its proposal to upgrade the 330 kV transmission network to increase the electricity supply capability between Collie and Perth.

Under the Electricity Networks Access Code 2004 (Access Code) Western Power is required to inform the public and interested parties about major augmentations to its infrastructure by publishing a notice on the Economic Regulation Authority's web site.

Further details about the proposed transmission network upgrade can be found in the attached Western Power notice.

The public is invited to make submissions to Western Power regarding alternative economic options to the proposed augmentation. Western Power also welcomes feedback on the contents of the public notice, particularly from parties who are considering connecting to the network.

Following the consultation process, Western Power must consider the views and alternative options that may be expressed in the submissions it receives. Subsequent to this, it is expected that Western Power will submit a major augmentation proposal to the Authority, which must then determine whether the regulatory test prescribed in the Access Code has been satisfied.

Please direct all enquiries regarding the augmentation to Western Power.

Additional information, including related documents, can be obtained from Western Power's web site: www.westernpower.com.au/sw330
