I am a 61 year old who has held an unrestricted Builders Licence in NSW for 30 Years and a Western Australian Builders Licence for 10 years. I have applied for a Class 2 Demolition Licence over 12 months ago and have been rejected on many occasions because they say I cannot prove experience in Demolition projects. I have finally been told I can now sit an exam as the last hurdle. The exam is a closed book exam which I find in today's world as utterly ridiculous. The Legislative Acts, Codes of Practice and Standards are readily available for reference, as they should, to anyone so I am at odds length to why I am subjected to going back to the 1960's style of closed book exams to obtain a Licence that my 40 years experiences in the Building game should be valued and considered.
